
TV tonight: Jordan Dunbar meets survivors of the Hiroshima nuclear bomb

Published by

Hollie Richardson, Ali Catterall, Graeme Virtue, Hannah J Davies

Estimated reading time

1 min

Added on

2025-08-04

Address

<https://www.theguardian.com/tv-and-radio/2025/aug/04/tv-tonight-jordan-dunbar-survivors-hiroshima-nuclear-bomb-documentary>

TV tonight: Jordan Dunbar meets survivors of the Hiroshima nuclear bomb

What Happened at Hiroshima

8.30pm, BBC One

Eighty years after the atomic bomb attack, a flame burns in the middle of Hiroshima Peace Memorial Park in Japan. It will only go out when all nuclear weapons are destroyed, but we are moving further and further away from that point. Jordan Dunbar meets survivors and campaigners who share how horrified they are about the state of the nuclear threat today. It is moving and pressing, but limited to just half an hour. Hollie Richardson

Panorama: Why I Joined a Riot

8pm, BBC One

It has been a year since the Southport attacks – in which three girls were killed – and the national riots that followed. Darragh MacIntyre, who reported on those events, returns to speak with three people who took part, as well as Ibrahim Hussein, the imam of Southport mosque. HR

Michael Mosley: Secrets of the Superagers

8pm, Channel 4

In the last series he recorded before his death, Michael Mosley – TV's favourite doctor – meets people keeping healthier for longer. Is gentle tai chi more beneficial than vigorous cardio? And can an 86-year-old really cycle his way to getting the immune system of a twentysomething? The doc finds the right people to ask. HR

Human

9pm, BBC Two

During one of the coldest eras in history, humans entered the Americas – "a world that was magical, pristine and primal", as Ella Al-Shamahi discovers. Here they faced colossal predators including 12ft prehistoric bears ("the stuff that nightmares are made of"). Yet as the climate changed, they adapted through innovation, eventually planting the seeds of farming – and civilisation. Ali Catterall

Chloe Ayling: My Unbelievable Kidnapping

9pm, BBC Three

In July 2017, 20-year-old model Chloe Ayling was lured from the UK to Milan for a photoshoot that became a six-day abduction ordeal. In this expansive new three-parter, Ayling reflects on her traumatic experience and the hostile reactions she subsequently received on social media. Graeme Virtue

The Gilded Age

9pm, Sky Atlantic

Julian Fellowes's Yankee Downton is now on its third season, and is belatedly becoming quite the treat. This week, Larry is back from his business trip in Arizona but his father, George, has some bad news for the Russell scion. And just who is spilling the tea about the family to the press?

Hannah J Davies

Produced by wallabag with tcpdf

Please open an issue if you have trouble with the display of this E-Book on your device.