Barcelona media give Anthony Gordon verdict

Sport noted the growing influence of Gordon on the England team and observed: ‘There’s also a statistic that perfectly illustrates just how groundbreaking Gordon is becoming.

‘His goal against Croatia was his second consecutive headed goal for England.

‘What’s truly remarkable is that the FA points out Gordon had gone 248 club matches across Everton, Preston, Newcastle, and Barcelona without scoring a single headed goal.

‘He’s now netted two in just two England appearances.

‘This is further proof that the footballer is expanding his repertoire.

‘Gordon arrived at Barca as a winger primarily known for his speed and pressing.

‘A few months later, England is witnessing the emergence of a player with more resources, more confidence, and a greater influence on the game.

‘Good news for the English, but also for Hansi Flick.’

Mundo Deportivo was also impressed with Gordon’s performance and described him as a ‘nightmare’ for Croatia.

The Barcelona-leaning Spanish publication noted wrote about Gordon’s heroics against his Camp Nou teammate Croatia goalkeeper Dominik Livakovic: ‘The number of attacks was so numerous that the Barca goalkeeper became the star of the show with two excellent saves against Gordon, whom he knows well.

‘He denied him in a one-on-one situation and from a point-blank shot.

‘But the former Newcastle player, a nightmare down the left flank, was about to continue his impressive form.

‘In the 21st minute, he controlled an impossible ball, turned, and delivered a low cross for Bellingham, arriving from deep, who simply had to tap it in.’
