Trump So Mad Secretary Shift*ced (And The Troops) Ruined His Birthday Parade

L-R: Loser, bigger loser, biggest loser, Slovenian loser, some lady who isn't even singing along to Lee Greenwood

One of our favorite things about Donald Trump's bouncy big boy birthday parade for bouncy big birthday boys — aside from the perpetually sullen look on Trump's face and Marco Rubio's dramatic yawning and the way Grandma Wrestlemania Linda McMahon sat there wearing the look of a woman who's missing the premiere of the newest Hallmark movie for this and she knows it — was Pete Hegseth AKA Secretary Shiftfaced's body language. It was everything. As he so often does when he's with Trump, Secretary Toughskins had the look of a boy who's absolutely terrified Daddy is about to slap the shit out of him, and who knows he's probably already in trouble for something he did. He becomes so small and subservient, such a baby loser, when Trump is around.

OK wait, actually our favorite part was Hegseth singing along with that shitty Lee Greenwood "proud to be an American" dogshit. He was doing it like he meant it, like this was a serious moment in his serious life, and it was as cringeworthy and stupid as the way he prays.

Hahahahahahahahaha, what an absolute loser, fuck, what a dork.

(Also, the guy standing on the other side of Shiftfaced who was also singing along was Daniel Driscoll, the moron Army secretary who thinks we have troops on the moon.)

Anyway, the hilarious and wonderful news is that Trump is reportedly very upset about how shitty his big flamboyant and fearful Kim Jong-Un birthday parade for big flamboyant and fearful dictators was, and he's really mad at Major Drunk about it. Also mad at the troops, because when is he not.

The source is Michael Wolff, so it could always be wrong, but this one feels exactly right, and moreover it sparks joy. Wolff told the Daily Beast Podcast that Trump really wanted his birthday shoot-em-up Army Guy parade to be “menacing” — Christ, what a loser — and was really mad when it was instead “festive.” (Uhhhhh, to be festive there would have had to have been an actual big crowd of people there, yes? Sorry, bud, all the “festive” was at the No Kings protests.)

“He’s p---ed off at the soldiers,” Wolff said. “He’s accusing them of hamming it up, and by that, he seems to mean that they were having a good time, that they were waving, that they were enjoying themselves and showing a convivial face rather than a military face.”

In other words they were acting like American troops who don’t need to prove anything — you know, like they’re from the world’s strongest military and don’t actually need to waste their time being good at marching — as opposed to the kinds of displays put on by the troops of dictators like Kim Jong-un and Vladimir Putin, who have everything to prove. We understand why a man as minuscule and unworthy as Donald Trump is unable to understand that the second thing is not actually a true show of strength.

It tracks that Trump would be mad at the troops, though, because Trump hates the troops. thinks they’re suckers and losers. (Important to keep that in context if he’s thinking about sending them to fight Israel’s latest war!)
