TV tonight: Matthew Macfadyen shrinks Elizabeth Banks in a new sci-fi comedy

The Miniature Wife

9pm, Sky Atlantic

Succession meets The Borrowers? Matthew Macfadyen and Elizabeth Banks are the warring couple – one a vain scientist, the other a flailing academic – at the heart of this scabrous, swearsy comedy with a sci-fi twist. The opening episode maps out the catastrophic contours of their marriage before a fateful whoopsie with a shrink ray. Graeme Virtue

Race Across the World

8pm, BBC One

This year's travelling pairs have greater cultural shifts ahead as they journey east towards Mongolia but, for now, they're in standard holiday-in-Europe territory. Having done Italy last week, they set off from Cephalonia and make their way through Greece. What's the quickest way to get to Istanbul? Jack Seale

Paul Merton: Driving Amazing Trains

8pm, Channel 4

Paul Merton is funny enough company to get a pass for this inessential but likable series in which old trains are put through their paces. Paul's dad was a tube driver, so in this opening episode it's a thrill for him to ride "upfront" on a Northern line train – albeit one that has been retired to the Isle of Wight. Phil Harrison

Inside Barlinnie

9pm, BBC Two

This fascinating documentary series exploring life in Scotland's largest jail returns. It's by turns alarming, sad and tentatively redemptive as we meet JP, a drug user who overdoses in the exercise yard, and Norry, led into crime by a difficult childhood and who is threatening suicide. PH

Taskmaster

9pm, Channel 4

The group chemistry forms quickly as another bunch of comic performers (Joanna Page, Amy Gledhill, Armando Iannucci, Joel Dommett and Kumail Nanjiani) assume their positions at the foot of Greg Davies's golden throne. There's fun with giant statues and a solo task that looks set to annoy a single contestant for the entire season. PH

Jane McDonald in Nashville

9pm, Channel 5

Jane McDonald has earned the right to her own country album, having endured a hefty share of heartbreak and loss. In this new series, the singer moseys on over to Tennessee's capital to take in the sounds and sights, and show why "this northern lass is southern, through and through". Ali Catterall

Sport

Horse Racing: Grand National festival1.30pm, ITV1. Day one from Aintree, including the William Hill Aintree hurdle.

Golf: The Masters2pm, Sky Sports Main Event. Round one from Augusta, Georgia.
